Champion Aerospace developed a Lycoming Piston Engine Solid State Ignition System, CH42PR20A, in 2010 for the Light Sport Aircraft program. This ignition system design can be tailored for use on experimental aircraft as well. At the system level the design consists of a control module assembly and two capacitive discharge module assemblies.

Champion Aerospace

Champion Aerospace manufactures ignition exciters, some of which contain a small amount of radioactive Tritium gas in the high voltage-switching component (referred to in this document as a "Spark Gap"). Spark gaps have been used in turbine engine ignition systems on aircraft since the 1940s, and are simple and reliable high voltage switches.

Industrial Ignition - federalmogul.com

The function of the aviation piston engine ignition system is to provide an electrical spark to ignite the fuel/air mixture in the engine cylinders. The ignition system of the engine is a separate system and is not part of the airplane's overall electrical system. The magneto type ignition system is used on most reciprocating aircraft engines.
